During an outdoor time the children were sketching in the flower garden. I suggested making a map of the garden. None of the children responded to the idea. Later I checked with 5 year old Olivia, who was sitting on a low wall at the bottom of the flower garden. I found that she was drawing a map of the outdoor classroom that included the garden, play equipment and the greenhouse. She worked for 30 minutes and then shared her very detailed map. Most of the areas of the outdoor classroom were accurate in their relative positions.

"Draw Jesus' cross, sun, sky"

"I thought about Jesus when he died."

In Science there's this music of a plant growing. It sounded like Jesus growing up. That got me thinking about Jesus.
